Welcome to the Delightful,

DARK and TWISTED world of

Brandy Aniston

The way we perceive the world around us is fully our decision. As individuals, the way we see things directly affects the way we live. How would you describe the way Brandy Aniston views life?

Brandy- I'm very optimistic. I believe everyone should be free to make the choices that they want for themselves. If they decide to be a pornstar perhaps, I believe they have that right to. We all have the right to do what we want with our bodies, and each person should live their life to the fullest and the way they truly want to.

This industry can be a lot of fun but can also get pretty crazy at times. Amidst the hectic and wild world of porn, how do you manage to keep such positive vibes and stay true to yourself?

Brandy- I stay very grounded. I have a very separate personal life and I never mix my adult world with my personal world. It's extremely hard not to let the two collide, but I manage to keep a very normal life. I can't give too many details but there are things I do outside of the industry that nobody would expect. For example, I'm a professional dancer and I even train others to dance. Staying grounded means keeping things separate and staying humble. We should never forget that everything can be taken away tomorrow. I worked hard for my career and nothing was given to me.

Everyone who knows about you is aware that you have a weakness for women! What is it about another woman's body that really drives you crazy?

Brandy- I LOVE butts and lips. It's always one of the two. If she has a really nice booty or a really pretty mouth it's going down! Oh but pretty eyes always work too though!

You've been the star of so many hot XXX vids.
If you could be on the other side of that camera and direct your own porn scene, how would it all play out?

Brandy- I actually have already gotten the chance to direct a porn and won an award for the first vid I directed! It was a crazy creation of mine. I wanted to use the opportunity to venture into the dark edgy side of myself. Instead of doing the usual porn or parody, etc. I directed “Brandy Aniston is FUCKED”. It was a crazy BDSM style movie. I had this idea to play someone in an insane asylum and the male performer was the guard in the scene. I can be really pretty, but I LOVE really crazy porn!

You studied finance and seem to be a rule breaker who follows her own path. What was the naughtiest thing you've ever done while you were a schoolgirl in college?

Brandy- I grew up with my family in real estate and finance so it was sort of natural to start there. I began going to college for my finance degree around the same time I started my radio show. I changed my major though and now I am almost finished my associate degree in radio broadcasting! I guess the naughtiest thing I ever did while studying in college was coming straight to school from a porn set. I am normally hiding in sweats and hoodies but showing up fresh from the set to class was pretty risky!

Successful relationships are tough in this day and age with every type of career. What's it like having a relationship and being married to someone who is also in the porn industry?

Brandy- Oh gosh! Well the relationship is super rocky and it has been for a long time because of the business. It's very difficult. I notice some people have an easy time with it, but my experience has not been easy. It has caused a lot of issues and still does to this day. My advice to anyone in the industry would be to stay single or date a "civilian". If you're both working in porn, it can be tough to accept. Dating a "civilian" works because they don't know how sets work, but being with another performer is hard because they know the concept. I can't count the times that I got information for a shoot and couldn't do it because of conflict with my significant other and vice versa. It's difficult for sure.

Time for a fantasy scenario! If you could have a threesome with ANY two celebrities, who would you choose and why?

Brandy- Oooh! I'd have to say Vin Diesel and Michelle Rodriguez. I have had fetishes for Vin Diesel for such a long time. The bald tattooed type is MY thing! And Michelle Rodriguez because I mean who wouldn't? She's awesome! Their movies together are just amazing!

There are so many different personalities in the porn industry. What would you say sets you apart from the rest?

Brandy- I would say that I have learned to not live in a fantasy world. I've been in the industry a long time and there is a certain attitude girls get when they get famous quick. It sort of messes with their heads and before you know it their attitudes change, their friends change etc. just because everyone knows their name. I learned that sometimes you don't want to be known and you much prefer to stay back and lay low. I don't care if someone doesn't know who I am. I am not offended by it. I think that's what sets me apart is that I treat it entirely like a business.

You like to have things your way! What's the biggest diva-demand you've ever had on set?

Brandy- I'm the least demanding kind of diva but if I'm doing a porn and I am cast as the role of a main character they usually ask what I want on set and for me it's always GUMMY BEARS! I'm pretty demanding with my candy. I swear to God that if you want to keep Brandy happy, just feed her and give her candy and she is all yours!

In terms of getting down and dirty, would you prefer to receive a facial from a sexy man or be covered in squirt from a hot girl?

Brandy- Hmm.. I'd choose a facial from a sexy man because a lot of times girls are peeing and I'm not really into that! Haha!

You have so many loyal fans and followers but everyone knows there is a fine line between support and over-stepping boundaries. What was the most awkward time a fan recognized you in public?

Brandy- Oh God it was when I was with my family at Disneyland! This guy would not go away and that was the worst part. It was really awkward and he kept trying to sneak photos when I wasn't looking even though I already let him take one. It was really creepy!

When you are getting yourself off on your own time do you watch porn and if so, what's your go-to keyword search?

Brandy- Yes I do! My go-to keyword search is always “girl/girl” and “amateur”. Always. I won't watch people I know and I know everyone so it has to be foreigners or amateurs. I really like old-school, hotel, tripod, girls-barely-know-what-they-are-doing type of shit. No script. Low budget.

Why we CHEAT

Ever since Adam risked paradise for that apple, humankind has been known to jeopardize the promise of stability for a taste of the forbidden fruit. We all recognize the allure of temptation and indeed, even the most pious individual among us is not entirely without sin. The single act of cheating in fact involves the commission of 4 of the 7 deadly sins and often results in a fifth: the wrath of a lover scorned. Envy, gluttony, greed and lust all wrapped up in one deceptive, destructive act, we have all been somehow affected by an act of infidelity, whether bearing witness to our parents' affairs as a child affected our view of relationships or our ability to trust new lovers was compromised by a cheating ex.

If you're anything like me, you get a knot in your stomach when you do something wrong. Some people are just too nervous and easily overcome with guilt to pull off an emotional heist like an affair. Nonetheless, I've been dating for 20 years and working in bars and salons for 15, so while I might not know firsthand what it's like to cheat, I've been two-timed more times than I care to count and picked the brains of many an adulterer over the years. We tend to be more forthcoming with our bartenders and stylists so it's fair to say that I've gleaned an uncensored look into the how, why, and when people cheat. Though no justification is with merit in the eyes and hearts of the betrayed, we must accept that cheating is a fairly commonplace occurrence. To truly acknowledge this and look it square in the eye instead of brushing it under the rug requires examining, while not excusing, the reasons behind why so many people stray.

An offense still punishable by death in some countries, adultery is consistently cited as the most common grounds for divorce. Perhaps more damaging than the act itself is the breach of trust involved when one half of a partnership is invested elsewhere and living a sort of double life behind the other's back. In fact, many people say they were able to get past the sexual act itself but could not reconcile the secrecy and duplicity involved in pulling off such a cape. Deception of such magnitude can easily undo foundations of trust that took years to build.

At some point we will likely all play a role in infidelity, whether as cheater, cheatee or the "other woman/man". Humans are curious, passionate, thrill-seeking creatures, so when we add to the mix the fact that we were not designed for monogamy and are hardwired to seek connections, it's easy to see why we have such difficulty with commitment. Still, while it's no surprise that as a species we have a tendency to wander, it still comes as a painful blow when a loved one is found to be sharing intimate encounters with others on the sly. Is a piece of ass worth your family? Your credit? Your integrity? While the answer is a resounding "no", these are not questions we ask ourselves while in the throes of passion. Even the death penalty is no deterrent to the commission of a murderous crime of passion, as we tend to act first and think later. But is a "piece of ass" really what cheating is about? Or is it the freedom to explore fetishes without judgment or rejection, the comfort of validation, the excitement of being desired, the inherent risk, even the shroud of secrecy involved, that leads us to cheat? And what constitutes cheating, anyway? A premise that varies greatly from one person to the next, we all impose restrictions and stipulations based on our own personal feelings of what betrayal consists of. I've known women who felt that watching porn is cheating and men who felt that happy endings aren't . There are those who feel that late-night messages or profound emotional connections are just as bad as carnal acts and those who feel that meaningless sex without emotion is fair game. While we all interpret loyalty in our own way we largely agree that sneaking around is unacceptable.

We all want to feel wanted. While true tenderness and the act of profoundly caring for and nurturing someone can impose a sort of maternal/paternal bond and thereby weaken our basest and most vulgar animal desires towards our partners, we mustn't trivialize the importance of feeling desirable. Sex as a chore, as an obligation, duty or favor is not the sex that human minds and bodies crave. The common gripings of monogamy are routine and boredom and indeed, a lack of variety can quickly extinguish a passion for anything, from jobs to relationships to creative pursuits. No surprise then that the thesaurus lists words like "tedium" and "monotony" as synonyms for words like "unity" and "alliance" . Even terms like "tiresomeness" and "dreariness" make an appearance on the list.

We take risks to indulge in vices all the time. From carbs to cards, cigarettes to coffee, booze to boobs, temptation comes in many forms. Similarly, we take risks to pursue adventure such as bungee jumping or skydiving. Danger is enticing. So when vice, danger and adventure are combined (as they so often are in situations like gambling, drugs and cheating) the appeal is that much harder to resist. While some of us are better at juggling, lying and being able to live with our transgressions, just how recklessly we behave often boils down to what we feel entitled to and what we can get away with. I've always maintained that nagging can only occur when someone agrees to do something then repeatedly fails to follow through but with that being said: as justified as your lamentations may be, if all your partner is getting from you is an earful, you'd better believe that he or she will eventually be getting a handful elsewhere. So pick your battles, ladies and gents, because nothing kills desire like resentment. It's safe to say that the decision to cheat is greatly influenced by our ability to justify our actions ("all she ever does is nag"and "he's so distant" are common examples) and how likely we are to get away with it. Desire + entitlement + opportunity equals follow-through in most cases.

As a staff member of an adult website I'd be remiss if I didn't touch on the oft-debated question: "is watching porn cheating?" In a word, no. But I won't pretend not to sympathize with someone who feels insulted or even inadequate by their partner's interest in x-rated videos. It's not a huge stretch to feel that your lover's desire for someone else may cause your role in the partnership to be diminished. In a healthy relationship, however, enjoying pornography should not cause the other party to feel hurt or unwanted, provided they feel included in their partner's sexual life. One thing's for sure, if you're not paying attention to your lover, he or she won't much care for your displays of attention towards someone else. Keep your sex life healthy and apply the same efforts in maintaining lust as you do towards maintaining love and remember that watching a video that gets you off is not at all the same as having someone physically get you off (and if it were then I've cheated every time I've cooked up a naughty visual in my head that didn't involve my husband). My spouse and I both watch porn, sometimes alone and sometimes together and it's important to realize that, more often than not, what we enjoy watching is not the same as what we enjoy doing. Watching girl-on-girl porn doesn't necessarily mean I'm attracted to women in real life, just as enjoying war movies doesn't mean I have any desire to experience combat firsthand. When we feel that we are playing an active role in our partner's desires both the compulsion to cheat and the tendency to react negatively to porn-watching would strike with far less force. Only in an unhealthy relationship (or if the viewer has an unhealthy relationship with porn) should we feel that enjoying pornography is scandalous or adulterous.Watching porn together is an easy and relatively effortless way to spice up your sex life and who knows, you may even find your favorite MV Girl together and schedule Skype shows with her as a couple or order custom vids which are a great way to create your own tailored fantasy even if you're not quite ready to act it out yourself yet. My friend and her husband wanted to add a third person to their bedroom for ages but were nervous to go through with it: pornography allowed them to test the waters by ordering a custom clip from their favorite camgirl on which she addressed them by name and talked about all the things the three of them could do together. Having immensely enjoyed this experience, they followed through with their first real-life threesome shortly afterwards and both report feeling more connected than ever before. For people who may have a hard time expressing their sexual desires, watching a video together can be an easy and less direct way to suggest things you'd like to experiment with. For couples who suffer from health issues and are not always up to the task of full-on intercourse flipping on an x-rated video enables them to share intimacy. The bottom-line? Porn is not meant to replace sex, rather it can be used as a tool to enhance sex.

Our automatic reaction to being cheated on is often to compare ourselves to the "other". "How is he/she better than me?" we've all wondered when presented with the knowledge that someone else has captivated our significant other's interest. We've all been guilty of social media stalking the offending party, looking for clues as to what they have that we don't have. But it's very rarely about how desirable the other is, rather, it's about how desirable they make your partner feel. Essentially, it's not about what they have but what they give. That's why it's so crucial to nourish our relationships and put in the same effort to keep things fresh and interesting as we did in the beginning.

Whether in the form of wandering thoughts, wandering eyes or wandering hands, we are all subject to the pull of seduction. Our appetites are only human, whether we suppress them or not. Dysfunction in relationships, sexual or otherwise, manifests itself in many ways and can expose us to realities that we may not wish to face. While escape is understandable it is by no means noble. As strong as love is, at the end of the day it's also maddeningly fragile. Why risk it to get off? If you aren't getting what you need from your chosen partner perhaps it's time to reexamine your choice.

Love hurts. It hurts when we jeopardize it, when we sabotage it, when we lose it. It hurts to see the look on a loved one's face when you've let them down. And it hurts when we are on the receiving end of neglect or mistreatment. Whether you're monogamous, polyamorous or somewhere in-between, if you're going to be sneaky you had better be damn good at it, because the sting of regret and the pain of lost love lasts far longer than the joy of an orgasm.

Fantasy FUCK ME

BY NINA KAY

Being a mistress, you deal with many headaches just waiting for your turn to indulge. You daydream often of the nights when you finally get to sink your claws into that tall, handsome man with his throbbing cock. He works late nights at the office which makes your time together possible on an almost weekly basis. Hiding it is difficult, but the risk is always worth the reward.

He calls his wife and tells her he is working late again while you are in his office waiting for him to hang up. You:

A) get on your knees under the desk while he is still on the phone to tease him mid-phone call and make his mind wander.

B) loosen his tie and bite it sensually so he can see the naughty girl in your eyes about to get wild.

Nina: I want to watch him get a bit uncomfortable and establish control. His wife isn't important, I am.

Finally, he hangs up ready to devour you. He had a long, hard week and wants to let go of his stresses. He pulls you up onto his desk and puts his head under your skirt to remove your panties with his teeth. You:

A) pull them off for him quickly so he can pleasure you faster and give you what you crave.

B) let him tease you - the build up is always a better release.

Nina: I love the tease, foreplay, and taking my time.

Your favorite thing about sneaking around with a married man is:

A) the thrill of being caught and knowing that even when he has everything, he still wants you.

B) the fact that you can enjoy his body and fuck when you need to without the hassle of everyday commitment.

I'm not into relationships and such. I love the physical aspect of men and women more than the emotional. I don't want to deal with someone else's problems. I just want to fuck.

You are sucking his cock and he is telling you how amazing you are at it.
You are combining your tongue and hand while looking up at him in control.
He says he is about to cum because you are blowing his mind. You:

A) let him finish all over your face because you aim to please and know he will be ready for round 2 shortly.

B) go for a little longer but stop before he cums to change things up and make the night last as long as possible.

Nina: Denied orgasm is frustrating for me. I get so turned on watching a man cum.
Plus I love round 2 because the dick always seems harder, stronger, and lasts much longer.

You take him anytime you can have him, but you yearn for him the most when:

A) he plans a night at a hotel for the two of you and you stay up all night enjoying each other.

B) when he says he doesn't have much time and you meet him in a parking lot for a quick, hot fuck.

Nina: It's such a tease!!! And knowing we have time and don't have to rush is amazing.
We can use toys, restraints, roleplay…truly enjoy the full experience.

You like it best when he:

A) bends you over his desk late at night and pounds you hard like you deserve.

B) pulls you on top and lets you ride him and work your magic.

Nina: I guess A. I mean I love B too. I love sex so much I love everything.
But a good pounding gets me screaming like nothing else.

When you are finished with him you:

A) already start wondering about your next encounter and missing him.

B) look forward to getting home, getting dressed and going out tonight.

Nina: I can't be around people that much. I get annoyed. I need my space, see ya when I see ya!
